POWER OF MUSIC

The Theosophical Society on the Mississippi Gulf Coast is presenting Dr. Mary Jane Newcomb, dean of student affairs at the Cleveland Chiropractic College in Kansas City, Mo., in a discussion of the power of music at the Gulfport Public, US-90, at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. At the event, free and open to the public, will be the showing of a film entitled "The Esoteric Nature of Music."

CONCERNED CITIZENS

The Concerned Citizens of Hancock County will hold a special meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at St. Rose De Lima Cafeteria, Necaise Avenue, Bay St. Louis. Gerry Lang, spokesman for the organization, reports important things such as revenue sharing funds will be discussed and urges everyone to attend.

ABSENTEE BALLOTS

Hancock County residents may obtain absentee ballots beginning Monday for the June 3 primary elections, according to Hancock County Circuit Court Clerk Henry Otis. In addition to casting votes for U.S. Representative, both Republican and Democratic voters will be showing preference towards presidential candidates. Otis' office is open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily, and will be open from 8 a.m. until noon Saturday, May 31.

regular United Way board of directors meeting Tuesday. "The United Way of Hancock County is the first United Way in Mississippi to accept the Epilepsy Council."

Last month, local United Way directors agreed to add the Epilepsy Council and the Salvation Army to its list of recipient agencies which now total 14 local and national organizations.

McIntosh said there are about 10 million epileptics nationwide, 50,000 in Mississippi and over 380 in Hancock County alone.

"Now that we've been funded by your local United Way we hope to have a free seizure clinic in Hancock County at least twice a year," McIntosh stated.

"We've started parent groups in Gulfport and Biloxi and we hope to start one here also," the executive director reported.

"Parent treatment kits will be passed out to all of the doctors in Hancock County to help parents in treating children for epilepsy," McIntosh stated.

"I would like to get some goals for us from your county. I think you should expect something in return for the money you are contributing to us," McIntosh said.

"Epilepsy is now creeping up as one of the major disease related killers. In the past we've said there are 100,000 new cases each year, but recent figures show there are really about 200,000 people effected nationally each year," McIntosh explained.

"There are over 200 different types of seizures," the executive director reported.

"Epilepsy is not a disease, but is a spinal disorder. Some 50 percent of all epileptic seizures are controllable to one seizure a year with only one percent of the whole epileptic population susceptible to grand-maul seizures," McIntosh said.

"The problem is epilepsy is the most hidden disorder there is," McIntosh added.

The executive director explained that epilepsy can occur from a brain injury at birth, through diseases that damage brain tissue, body chemical changes, head injuries or stress.

"We are far behind European countries in the fight against epilepsy. A majority of the medication for epileptics comes from overseas and we have a problem in getting a lot of the new medications because they have not yet been approved by our government," McIntosh said.

Seniors Volunteer Program Director and Rev. Willis Britt, Main Street United Methodist Church pastor. The Hancock County group is the first United Way in the state to add the Epilepsy Council to its list of recipient agencies. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

Child abuse, neglect cases growing locally

EDITORS NOTE: A series of articles on child abuse will be published over the next two weeks exploring this problem from the standpoint of professionals who may come in contact with abused children or families, the abused child and the abusing parent. We will also offer suggestions on how these people may seek help.

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Child abuse and neglect in Hancock County and across the state appears to be increasing based on current State Department of Public Welfare reports. Dr. Catherine Lundy of Waveland, Gulf Coast Mental Health Center psychologist and coordinator of Hancock County services defines child abuse as, "a repeated mistreatment or neglect of a child by a parent or parents resulting in injury or harm to the child."

"The abused family is in trouble rather than it just being a case of bad parents," Dr. Lundy says.

"We look at the abused family as a composite picture, not just one person, and the pattern of abuse is terribly predictable," the psychologist reports. Over the past three years Hancock County's substantiated cases of abuse and neglect increased more than seven times, from four in 1977 to 23 in 1979.

Statewide, substantiated cases increased, from 1,054 in 1977 to 1,417 in 1979.

Wallace Bradley of Waveland, Hancock County Welfare Department director, explains, "Substantiated abuse means we made an investigation and determined there was abuse backed up by physical evidence. There is no question in our minds abuse has occurred, but it doesn't mean the case went to court."

"Abuse also includes exploitation which may for instance be getting a child to beg for money. This is a case of using a child," Bradley adds.

"Substantiated neglect is when there

Sills praises prompt relief measures

By RICH ADAMS

Hancock County School Superintendent Billy D. Sills Saturday commended county public officials for prompt action following a tornado Thursday which damaged Gulfview Elementary School.

"I cannot remember the public officials of this county ever working together before, and I think it is a miracle that these officials took such prompt action following the tragedy at Gulfview," Sills told the board at its Saturday morning meeting.

The tornado struck in the evening during an eighth grade graduation ceremony at the school which some 500 students and relatives attended.

The ceremonies were being conducted in the school gymnasium when the twister struck, heavily damaging the main section of the school some 100 feet from the gym.

Sills said Saturday two days of rain did more damage than the tornado itself as damaged sections of the roof allowed heavy rain to enter the school. Sills called for an electrician, preferably the electrician who installed the original wires, to inspect damage done to the electrical system so no fires will result.

"I want all appliances and receptacles checked. Come August or September I don't want anything shorting out and causing a fire," Sills told the board.

Sills said he has Thomas Stinson of Stinson Fencing working to repair damaged fences, Miti Roofing of Bay St. Louis working on damaged roofs, and Bay Contractors working on other damages.

"The crews would have been done early next week if it weren't for the rain," Sills said.

In addition, Sills reported the school grounds have been cleaned up, the interior of the school is cleaned, and

A telephone threat alleging that a bomb had been planted on the Space Shuttle's main propulsion system disrupted activities Thursday at the National Space Technology Laboratories.

An evacuation was ordered and a search conducted after a security guard was told at 4:45 a.m. that a bomb was located at the 40-story test stand. But a search failed to turn up a bomb or any evidence.

Shuttle cleared after bomb threat

Officials expected activities at the test area to return to normal by late afternoon shortly after the second shift arrived for work, but a security spokesman said Thursday night that the all-clear signal had not been given. "The male caller did not demand money or espouse any cause," said Edwin R. Ling, chief counsel for the Hancock County facility.

"We went into an emergency plan and evacuated the test stand area," said Ling.

He added that because of the early hour of the call, only a few employees were in the area—mostly security and maintenance personnel.

A volunteer from Rockwell International, the firm which built and is testing the propulsion system, began a search of the main test article and went through the stand level by level.

Ling said a U.S. Army bomb disposal unit with headquarters in Hattiesburg was on standby to handle a bomb if one were found.

Other agencies coordinating security measures were the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Mississippi Highway Patrol, and the Hancock County Sheriff's Office.

Ling said the test stand is a restricted area and only about 300 employees have regular access.

Pair charged with larceny

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Two persons have been arrested and are being held in the Hancock County jail on charges of grand larceny and petty larceny with bond set at $5000 each, according to Hancock Sheriff Ronald A. (Ronnie) Peterson.

The two subjects are also being held for Harrison County officials for the same charges in that county, Peterson said.

The two Bay St. Louis residents are Pedro Williams, 24, 223 Ballentine St., and Eric Nichols, 24, 314 Sycamore St., according to the sheriff.

Peterson gave this account, "The two suspects went to the Diamondhead Sales office to apply for a job. During their stay there, they allegedly went through a lady's purse and took a Handbank card and savings account book."

"This happened April 22, and they then allegedly went to the US-90 Hancock Branch in Bay St. Louis and withdrew $400 from the Handbank, using the card," Peterson commented. The sheriff said the two "went to Harrison County where they again allegedly used the Handbank card and savings withdrawal receipts to take another $900, $500 and $400 from the lady's account."

The lady did not miss her Handbank card until the next day, Peterson said. Peterson said Investigators Alvin Ladner and Delbert Seay, Deputy Ronnie Cuevas, Harrison County Investigator Jim Sanders, and Hillard Trope, Hancock Bank investigator, are the investigating officers.

A June 23 hearing for Williams and Nichols is scheduled before Justice Court Judge John Chevis.

BaySide flooding plagues resident

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Jim Davis of West Ridley Street in the BaySide Park subdivision appeared at a recess Hancock County Board of Supervisors' meeting Monday complaining of flooding in his area.

District One Supervisor Bert Courge agreed to 'open up' the ditch and added he has spent over $50,000 replacing collapsed culverts in that area.

Davis reported, "I have a drainage ditch behind my lot that floods me out every time we have a hard rain."

"I'm flooded again this morning," Davis added.

"I was wondering if the ditch could be widened. There's a lot of trash and debris in the ditch," the BaySide resident said.

Courge replied, "Once before we cleaned out that ditch and we're putting all new culverts in that area."

"There are three ditches in that area which form a T and drain into Bayou Phillip. The bayou backs up into that area with a heavy rain and there's no place for the water to go," Courge explained.

Davis said, "It's not only now, but everytime we have a heavy rain."

Courge stated, "The bayou backs all the way up to Pearl's Gift Shop on US-90. The ditch is clogged between your place and the outlet."

Davis suggested, "If there was a way to build a levy it would stop the flooding."

The District One supervisor said he might get the Corps of Engineers to approve a permit to dredge out the bayou.

Davis added, "The flooding problem is getting worse."

Courge stated, "We'll be glad to open up the ditch, but we have already spent $50,000 in BaySide Park replacing collapsed culverts."

Regarding the Oak Harbor Subdivision area, Hancock County Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson read a letter he received from the Oak Harbor Club, Inc. requesting the county's assistance in removing junked vehicles left on the side of roadways.

The supervisors passed an order directing the owner of eight junked vehicles on roads in Oak Harbor to remove the derelict vehicles before the next board meeting in June.

Board Attorney Walter Gex said Monday he did not know the name of the individual who owned the abandoned cars.

Peterson was unavailable for comment Tuesday due to problems accompanying Monday's rash of tornadoes.

Peterson said Monday, "Mr. Courge is familiar with this problem. The cars are on county roads."

Courge stated, "These cars are an obstruction to county maintenance of these roads."

District Five Supervisor James Travirca asked, "Is there any way to make a blanket motion to notify people then have the cars removed?"

Peterson replied, "The Oak Harbor organization has sent certified letters to the owners."

Gex said, "If the cars are obstructing the road and are a nuisance, they can be removed."

Courge replied, "The cars are obstructing maintenance."

Gex added, "I'd give them so many days to move the vehicles then remove them."

Peterson stated, "The letter I received was signed by numerous home owners."

District Four Supervisor Sam Perniciaro asked, "Are they junked cars?"

Peterson replied, "Yes. I just wanted some advice if I try to move the cars. I wanted to know if I was in my legal right to do this."

Board President A.A. (Dolph) Kellar asked, "Don't they have a federal law on this?"

Peterson added, "When you move cars like this people get mad about it."

Gex stated, "I'll try to find the answer. I don't think this will take board action. The question is whether you should take the cars to the man's property or impound the vehicles. I'll clear it with the State Attorney General's office."

Later during the board meeting Gex reported, "I talked to the Attorney General's office about abandoned automobiles and they said there is no definite statute."

"They did recommend that the board of supervisors pass an order to give the car owner a certain amount of time to remove the automobiles. If he does not remove the automobiles we would present him an order of contempt. We have to serve him notice," Gex explained.

Perniciaro said, "I'd like to make it a blanket motion to include all beats."

Gex stated, "I think you have to notify each individual concerned."

Courge reported, "I have a trailer on a road that's a hazard."

Gex said, "On anything that's an immediate hazard you can act on it immediately, but with this other man, he has a fence where the vehicles can't be moved on to his property."

is no question in our mind that there is a lack of physical care or medical attention. It may also be if a child is not being fed enough or does not have adequate clothing," Bradley states.

Hancock County's unsubstantiated cases of abuse and neglect increased seven times, from three in 1977 to 21 in 1979.

Unsubstantiated cases statewide more than doubled, from 654 in 1977 to 1,747 in 1979.

Bradley explains, "Unsubstantiated abuse and neglect means we've looked into a problem, but we would not classify it as abuse or neglect. The problem may be developing into a substantiated case, but we've headed the problem off with counseling. It is a matter of degree."

Dr. Lundy says, "I don't know whether actual abuse is on the upswing, people may be more sophisticated now and are reporting cases more often."

Bradley reports, "We seem to have more cases of incest (one form of child abuse) cropping up in the last year." "There has been more awareness by the public to give us reports," Bradley adds.

Section 41 of the Youth Court Act of 1979 states, "Any licensed doctor of medicine, licensed doctor of dentistry, intern, resident, registered nurse, psychologist, teacher, social worker, school principal, child care giver, minister, law enforcement officer, or any other person having reasonable cause to suspect that a child brought to him or coming before him for examination, care of treatment, or of whom he has knowledge through observation is a neglected child or an abused child, shall cause an oral report to be made immediately, by telephone or otherwise and followed as soon thereafter as possible by a report in writing to the Department of Public Welfare..."

Section 42 of the Act states that any person, "...participating in the making of a required report pursuant to Section 41 of this act or participating in the judicial proceeding resulting therefrom shall be presumed to be acting in good faith. Any person or institution reporting in good faith shall be immune from any liability, civil or criminal, that might otherwise be incurred or imposed."

Although state law specifically requires professional citizens to report cases of abuse or neglect, a recent State Department of Public Welfare report states, "...friends, relatives and neighbors report abuse more than professional people."

RED CROSS HELPS - Joe Bare, left, Mrs. Margaret Presley, have papers filled in by Bill and Annette Hoffman for Red Cross aide due to having their home destroyed by Monday's tornado. Bare and his wife were in a mobile home when the tornado struck and the winds were so strong they removed Mrs. Bare's rings from her fingers, for which they are still searching. Mrs. Presley also lost her mobile home and everything inside. They received short term help from the American Red Cross. "Mississippi is the largest dispenser of phenobarbital which is used in treated epileptics," McIntosh stated. "We're very rural in Mississippi and we have a very hard time distinguishing between fits of rage and actual seizures," McIntosh said.

"We charge nothing for our services and we work extensively with school teachers. We are also trying to get to the younger population and tell them actually what epilepsy is," McIntosh explained.

In other business, at the 4 p.m. meeting in the Valena C. Jones Center in Bay St. Louis, the board:

—Authorized the secretary to secure financial statements from all 14 agencies along with their request for funding;

—Heard a report from United Way President Norton Haas Sr. of Bay St. Louis that he is working to secure payroll deductions from several Port Bienville Industries; —Heard a report from Retired Seniors Volunteer Program Director Theresa James of Clermont Harbor that her organization is trying to place 'Vials of Life' in all senior citizen's homes.

—Heard a request by Senior Citizen's Program Director Eve McDonald asking the board to establish a memorial fund.

—Discussed the 1980 campaign.

Bits 'n pieces

We can well remember times when disasters would hit our area and elected officials would all sort of wait around for the other person to do something first.

It is hard, of course, for us to compare the recent tornados with Hurricane Camille, but it took over a week after the 1970 disaster, as it seemed to us, before officials got their act together.

Monday night the tornado raked over Hancock County and in minutes all types of emergency actions were being taken.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors were out surveying the damages, meeting promptly to declare the area a disaster.

The Hancock County School Board members did not wait and fiddle around, they went to work immediately on emergency repairs at Gulfview Elementary School.

The Hancock County Sheriff's Office, Bay St. Louis and Waveland Police Departments, regulars and auxiliaries all responded to the situation.

The Civil Defense and all of its volunteers were out helping. The Hancock County Firemen's Association members hurried to the disaster areas. Red Cross volunteers offered assistance in shelter and food.

The damaged areas were blocked by police to prevent looters and sightseers.

We know there were a lot of sightseers as we saw them being turned away and that is the way it should be in the time of emergency.

Coast Electric, Mississippi Power and South Central Bell personnel were all out night and day restoring services.

We feel all these folks should be commended for a job well done.

It is good news that our state officials are seeking the return of the Miss USA Pageant again next year.

A tremendous amount of publicity has been given to the Mississippi Gulf Coast for two years in a row.

We hope they will be able to convince the motel-hotel owners and restaurant association the amount of benefits the area receives from such a function.

We read where the pageant was rated the number one program for the week in ratings which will give you some idea of the importance of such an event being staged on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

PROUD FLAG - This American Flag was proudly flown at a Carroll Avenue residence for Memorial Day last year. We hope more citizens will display their flags Monday for Memorial Day. You are invited to Memorial Services sponsored by Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post 139 starting at 10 a.m. in St. Mary's Cemetery, Necaise Avenue. This service will be followed by special Memorial Day Services at Waveland's American Legion Post on Coleman Avenue at 11 a.m. We hope you will attend the special services honoring our proud Americans who gave their all for our freedom.

Eyewitness gives account of fearful night in Gulfview gym

Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor,
I would like to comment on my experience on May 19th, 1980 which will never be forgotten.

Gulfview graduation was mid-way through its ceremony.

The graduates had just received their diplomas and special awards were just getting underway.

The young women and men had great big smiles on their faces.

They could hardly keep still awaiting the party, and dance that was to be held immediately after the graduation exercise in the gym.

When suddenly what could have been one of the worst disasters in the history of Hancock County—a tornado touched down and just missed the gym.

Everyone in there knew what was going on because the gym began to shake and dust from the insulation began to fall down.

Then the lights went out. The people began to panic, thinking of their loved ones which they could not see, hear, not get to, because of the screams.

But with the help of a lot of people who kept cool, most of the 400-500 people quitted down.

The tornado moved over to the school which was unoccupied and did a lot of damage, but not the first person was harmed, thank God!

Sincerely,
Jim Ladner

Dog bite victim can't get animal quarantined

May 17, 1980

The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis, MS

To the Editor:

I'm writing about a serious public health situation in Bay St. Louis.

While riding my bicycle down Julia Street on May 15, I was followed by a pack of dogs. A large, light colored dog with no indication of having had rabies shots tore my dress and bit my leg. The result was a doctor's visit, a tetanus shot, antibiotics and 24 hours of hot compresses to the blood clot caused by the wound.

Although this has been reported to the Health Department, the Police, the Dogcatcher, the doctor and the dog's owner, the dog has not been taken in by any responsible authority.

I've been told only to "get the dog and tie him up for 10 days" (the incubation period for rabies).

Now if a strange, unfriendly dog bit you, would you want to "get him and tie him up?" The owner told me he would not tie up the dog, the dogcatcher won't take him in because all the dogs in the pound have distemper.

If this dog is exposed, the dogcatcher says, he might die and then we won't know if he has rabies or not. Arent' dogcatchers supposed to catch dogs?

If at the end of the 10 days this dog has disappeared no one will know whether he is rabid or not, so I will have to have the rabies shots anyway (although no health official has given me this advice or seemed concerned) because this is one dread disease I don't want to risk getting.

But what of all the children or other people or animals who may have been in contact with the dog? And since the victim was told to tie up the dog I guess the victim will also be the one to go see if he's foaming at the mouth on May 25th.

No one else has volunteered.

Do a little reading up on rabies and the painful shots and you'll see how I feel.

Fears reappraisal will result in higher taxes, rents

May 2, 1980
Editor
Sea Coast Echo:

I would like to comment on the unofficial meeting of the Board of Supervisors covered by Mr. Wayne Ducomb Jr.

The coverage seemed adequate even good.

The question asked of Mr. Houston Evans by some of the Supervisors showed concern for their constituents and their tax dollars.

Some of the Supervisors and the mayor must have been absent or unconcerned and did not ask a question. Oh well, maybe they had all the answers already.

We know re-appraisal programs have been studied in other states, counties or municipal districts.

California, Florida and ect and ect; the search for new or more revenue goes on and on and up.

Mr. Evans said reappraisal would up taxes on about 1-3 of the properties, down 1-3 of the properties and about one-third would remain unchanged; that some of the elderly who did not pay taxes would have to pay.

I say we need a lot more explanation and clarification on this thing.

Our Senior Citizens and low income people are over-burdened now.

This also has to affect the renter or lease tenant and could cause increases to them.

In the same manner it could reduce the profit margin for a lessor on a long term contract.

We are in a recession with high inflation and I don't believe that the people and the county can afford $700,000 dollars at this time.

We elect people to government office to do a job.

More and more of those people elected to do the job have to hire outside help to do that job.

I don't believe we can afford $700,000 for reappraisal to find a few tax dodgers.

I believe Mr. Murtagh and staff along with cooperative citizens could get the job done.

They could find the over-taxed marshes and low lands, the under taxed high lands.

A Board and pad and pencil, a lot of leg work and the county tax-books can find the tax dodgers.

Trashy people may be Civic Association's real problem

May 19, 1980

Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir:

Your article of May 18, 1980 about the boat renting on Clermont Harbor Beach points up the fact that there is no clear public policy on the use of the Waveland, Clermont Harbor Beaches. The complaint of the Clermont Harbor Civic Association is obviously phony.

How can a boat rental business cause a trash dumping problem. The problem to the Association and property owners is not trash which goes in cars but trashy people.

Then why not say so? In New Orleans former Police Supt. Giarrusso called them "SCUM BUMS."

The State of Mississippi in developing the State Park and especially in opening the Wave Pool established a public policy for the area in conflict with the wishes of the local community.

Now that the scum bums are here, the local Community is up in arms, but too late.

The time to complain was before the Wave Pool was built.

Former professional entertainer credits Headstart talent

Letters to the Editor
Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir:

Last night (May 14th), I attended the graduation exercises of the Bay-Waveland Head Start.

Never, have I seen such well behaved children (40 of them) with their caps and gowns just like the big folks.

They all knew by heart the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag and the words to God Bless America.

But what thrilled me, being an ex-professional singer and actress was the talent displayed by these children, none over six years of age.

In my life time I've seen the Ziegfeld Follies, George White's Scandals, Vaudeville at the Palace in New York and Chicago and the biggest and the best entertainers, but these little kids put on a show that had the audience standing on their feet.

Congratulations are due every one at Head Start who worked tirelessly with these children so that they are now ready to start "big" school with a good foundation in behavior and knowledge.

Senior hospitality center shop needs name

Dear Sir:

The Senior AIDES Marketing Outlet, located by the Hospitality Center on Highway 90 in Waveland, is nearing completion.

The purpose of this shop is to provide an outlet for handicrafts produced by Senior Citizens, while at the same time stimulating the use of talents and providing additional income for the participants. This is a non-profit marketing outlet.

Presently we are looking for a name for the shop, and in order to select a name that would be most suitable, we would like to have a contest in which the general public is invited to participate.

The entries should be mailed by June 1 in order to have our sign ready for the proposed opening date of July 1.

The winners name will be announced in the Sea Coast Echo and a special invitation and recognition will be extended the winner at the grand opening.

Thank you for your cooperation, and please accept our gratitude for the publicity you have given our other programs in Hancock County - The Senior Job Registry and the Home Maintenance Program.

We will stop by your office and pick up the entries, from time to time.

Teacher union disappointed with 1980 Legislation

May 12, 1980
Honorable William Winter, Governor
State of Mississippi
State Capitol
Jackson

Dear Governor Winter:
The Mississippi American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, feels that the recent utter confusion over the Public School Minimum Foundation Program Bill emphasizes the immediate need for a special session of the legislature to deal with those problems facing Public Education in Mississippi.

The problems are too complex in nature to deal with in a regular session. Last year and again this year, the Minimum Foundation Program Bill was passed the day before adjournment. This was done more out of desperation than anything else.

Just once, consider Public Education first. As you recall, Governor Walter formed a "Blue Ribbon" committee to study the problems facing our public schools and make recommendations. The study is gathering dust in some closet.

We call upon you, one of the leaders of our state, to call a special session of the legislature at the earliest date possible to look at our Minimum Foundation Program, the unjust School Employment Procedures Act of 1977, optional participation by school personnel in the Public Employees Retirement System and social security, collective bargaining for all public employees - the legislators are always telling teachers to go to the local level for help, and the several different types of school districts.

These are but a few of the problems researched to death now. What we need is action.

As far as teacher salaries, the only good thing that can be said about the 1980 Legislative Session is the prompt and professional manner in which Jack Gordon and Brad Dye guided Senate Bill 2804 through the Senate.

This bill would have helped to ease the inflationary pressure on teachers by providing non-taxable fringe benefits.

The legislature is not doing teachers a favor by giving a 6 percent-10 percent salary increase, while inflation is increasing 15 percent-20 percent.

In the three years, Mississippi teachers have lost 15 percent-20 percent to inflation in purchasing power.

Teachers need to receive fringe benefits and large salary increase, now.

Teachers tried to work with the legislature this year, but failed.

Next year, who knows.

Sincerely,
James V. Caster

Scientist supports shroud's validity

By RICH ADAMS

Results of the most recent scientific studies on an ancient shroud believed by many to be the burial cloth of Jesus Christ were revealed Tuesday to an overflow audience at the Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity at NSTL in Hancock County.

Dr. Robert H. Dinegar discussed his findings from an extensive 1978 study tagged Operation STURP: Shroud of Turin Research Project, which was conducted to determine the authenticity of the cloth.

A negative-like image of a man who was believed to have been crucified appears on the cloth.

Dr. Dinegar, in addition to being a physical chemist at Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico, is also associate rector of Trinity on the Hill Episcopal Church in Los Alamos.

"We (Dinegar and 40 other scientists involved in Operation STURP) have found no evidence to show that the Shroud of Turin is a hoax, and now we can shift the burden of proof to the skeptics," Dinegar told his captive listeners Tuesday.

Dinegar said the 14-foot long, 3.5-foot wide cloth is protected by the House of Savoy in Italy, under the direct care of the Cardinal Archbishop of Italy.

On the cloth is a double image of a man, head-to-head, clearly outlining the front and back of the man, Dinegar explained.

The image is five-foot, nine-inches tall and estimated weight of the man would have been 170 pounds, he continued.

"The Jewish manner of burial in the period during which Christ was crucified would allow for the double head-to-head image," Dinegar told the audience.

"While Egyptians wrapped burial cloth around the corpse, Jews laid a corpse on top of a cloth, pulled an equal amount of the cloth over the face and front of the body, and tied separate strips of cloth around the body to hold the larger cloth in place," Dinegar said.

Dinegar recapped the history of the shroud, placing the cloth in Jerusalem for 600 years prior to being taken to Constantinople by a disciple, where it remained until the 13th century when it was removed by crusaders during the Holy Wars.

After disappearing for some 100 years, the shroud appeared in Paris, France in 1308.

From Paris it was moved to Chambery, and in 1478 was taken to Turin, Italy, where it now remains.

Dinegar emphasized the shroud is a material object which may be studied, unlike myths and legends.

"It is difficult to study an Unidentified Flying Object, Bigfoot, and spooks, but I can touch and examine the Shroud of Turin," the Episcopalian minister said.

The shroud was on public exhibit in 1978, reportedly to celebrate the 500th anniversary of its arrival in Turin. At the end of the six-week exhibition, the 40 scientists were allowed to conduct non-destructive tests on the cloth, Dinegar explained.

Dinegar explained the scientists went to extremes to protect the cloth from tearing, spending $22,000 on a stainless steel and aluminum rack upon which to place the shroud.

"The clergy had thumbtacked the shroud to a piece of plywood for the public exhibition. When the clergymen removed the tacks, I offered to hold the tacks while others were removed. I kept the tacks, thus instant relics," Dinegar said.

Among the studies conducted on the shroud were x-rays, ultraviolet spectrometry, and infrared spectrometry, in addition to a number of photographs.

One of the major finds by the scientist was that areas referred to as 'bloodstains'—located at the wrist, ankles, back, and around the head—soaked through the surface material and could be seen on back of the cloth, unlike the image, which is only present on the surface of the shroud.

The material from which the shroud is made is a linen, woven on a cotton loom, which would place its date of origin to biblical times, Dinegar said.

The cloth is well preserved, Dinegar explained, because processing of the material before weaving involved a bleaching process in alkaline wood-ash, which is toxic toward lower forms of life such as mildew and mold.

The 'bloodstains' were put to a test in the 1500's when a fire nearly destroyed the shroud, Dinegar said.

The shroud had gotten wet when the fire was extinguished, and the bloodstains flowed from their original spots, but the image of the man remained intact.

"This fire destroyed a church, but did not touch the image on the cloth, although parts of the cloth were burnt," Dinegar said.

"It is almost like the shroud were being protected," he added.

The stain which produces the outline of the body has not yet been identified by scientists, but Dinegar told the audience he believes it is the result of a sudden flash of heat on the cloth.

In explaining the possibility of the image being that of a man who had been crucified, Dinegar offered much evidence.

"The image has only four fingers showing, no thumbs. In 1932, experiments on corpses revealed a nail would have to be hammered through the wrist of a person to crucify him," Dinegar explained.

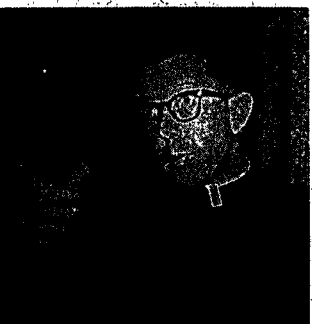

"When crucifixion occurs, therefore, the thumb of the victim would eclipse inward toward the palm, thus explaining the absence of a thumb in the image," he continued.

"The nail hole on the wrist, we have determined, is square. This is also proof that the man was crucified during this era, because the round nail was not invented until the 1920's," Dinegar told his listeners.

"It appears something is resting on the eyelids of the image. We have taken close-up photographs of the face, and, according to scientists, the Judean Bronze Lepton coin of Pontius Pilate struck about 30 to 31 A.D. would be about the correct size," he continued.

"It was common practice of the Jews to place coins on the eyelids of the deceased to keep them closed. The close-up photographs show a detailed likeness to the coin on the eyes of the image," Dinegar said.

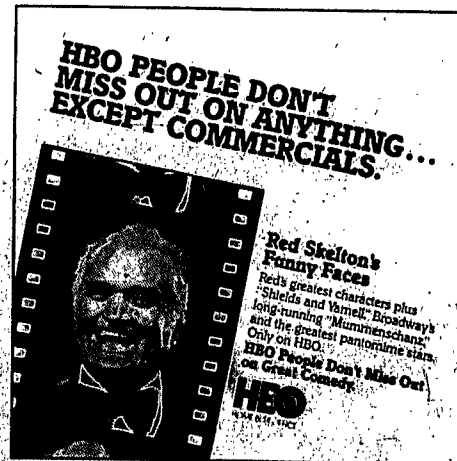

Dinegar explained that the iron level of the image is usually 10 to 13 percent, but is nearly 50 percent on the 'blood-stained' areas.

Pass fleet blessing today

The Fifth Annual Pass Christian Blessing of the Fleet will take place today at the Pass Christian Harbor at 2 p.m., according to Police Chief Ed Alley, general chairman of the event.

Gaily decorated working shrimp and pleasure boats will parade in front of the harbor and will be judged for prizes.

The fleet will be blessed by Monsignor James McCough, pastor of St. Paul's Catholic Church, and the Rev. H. McDonald Morse, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church.

Judges will be Senator George Smith, District Attorney Albert Necaise, and Glen Cannon.

Charlotte Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Randall Jones Jr., will be Queen of the Fleet.

Princesses are Desiree Davion, Glenda Gregory, Tina Adams, Kristin Murray, and Diana Ulrich.

Music will be provided by a New Orleans Jazz Band and complimentary seafood will be served.

"This is not saying this is absolutely blood, just that it could be," Dinegar said.

Another point of skeptics is that the red areas, if they were bloodstains, would have turned brown or black just a few days after death.

"The color could remain red if the cell membrane was broken before discoloration could occur," Dinegar explained.

"One of the products of the alkaline wood-ash in which the cloth was soaked is glycoside, a type of sugar, which is known to break blood cells on contact," he added.

During a question and answer period, Dinegar was asked what he believed was the cause of the image on the cloth.

"The discoloration may have been caused by a rapid deposition of energy in the fibres. At the increased temperature brought about by the energy transfer, chemical reactions could produce different substances which make an area appear dark," Dinegar said.

He was introduced by his daughter, Janice Dinegar Boyd, who is an oceanographer with NORDA.

Primary election June 3

New voting machines featured in seminar

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A statewide June 3 primary election will have Democratic candidates for District Two supreme court judge and Fifth Congressional District U.S. representative.

Republican delegates to the 1980 Republican National Convention for presidential candidates George Bush and Ronald Reagan will be selected.

Circuit Clerk Henry Otis will have a voting machine seminar Wednesday in the Courtroom at the County Courthouse for the Democratic and Republican Executive Committees, all precinct managers and the general public.

"We expect a big turnout for the election because of the novelty of the new voting machines," Otis said.

Mike Retzer, Republican state committee chairman, said Friday afternoon in Jackson, "This is the first time in the history of Mississippi that either party in Mississippi has allowed the people of the state to choose their delegates to a national party convention in an open primary."

Otis said Friday morning, "In this primary a registered voter can vote either as a Democrat or Republican, but if a person for instance votes Republican in this primary they can't vote as a Democrat in the next election."

"Any person who is registered to vote 30 days prior to the June primary are eligible to vote," Otis stated.

"Past party affiliations and participation in Democratic primaries in the past are not factors for who can participate in the Republican primary," Otis reported.

Democrats will choose one candidate to run against U.S. Congressman Trent Lott in November.

Candidates for the U.S. House of Representative's Fifth Congressional Post will be Arlon (Blackie) Coate, Jimmy McVay of Ocean Springs and James Ellison Parker.

Joseph Benvenuti, Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee Chairman said, "In the event one of the candidates does not get a majority there will have to be a runoff in a second primary, so everybody get out and vote."

Democrats running for District Two supreme court judge are James D. Hester of Laurel and incumbent Hon. Harry G. Walker.

Republicans will choose four delegates to the 1980 Republican National Convention.

The four delegates slated for Bush are Mrs. Lee Bonin of Biloxi, Jim Fargason of Gulfport, O.M. Lister of McLain and Admiral Frederick Reeder of Laurel.

Regan's slate of delegates are Glynn Cox of Gautier, Victor Mavar of Biloxi, Dr. James Moye of Laurel and Dick Thomson of Hattiesburg.

Republicans will also choose four alternate Regan delegates who are Dr. Jack Hoover of Pascagoula, Jim Johnson of Laurel, Mike Randolph of Hattiesburg and State Senator Bob Usey of Gulfport.

Retzer explained, "Voting will be similar to the election for president in November where you vote for a slate of electors pledged to vote for a certain candidate."

"A voter doesn't have to vote for the entire Regan or Bush slate," Retzer added.

Democrat precinct managers for the June 3 primary are Kathy Albert at Ansley, Eldora Summers at Pearlinton, Iona Lafontaine at

EDA gives Waveland $65,000 sewer money

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Economic Development Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce has approved an approximate $65,000 grant for a Nicholson Avenue and US-90 sewer line crossing.

The Waveland Board of Aldermen received final approval notice at its regular meeting Wednesday night.

Mayor John Longo of Waveland said Saturday morning, "The approximate $100,000 project will run a line under US-90 providing sewerage north of the highway."

"EDA will provide approximately $65,000 out of the $100,000," the mayor added.

Previous estimates by project engineers Lewis, Eaton Partnership of Jackson had set the project's cost at $60,000.

Longo stated, "I'm delighted we received the EDA money. I don't think there's been a year gone by we haven't received grant money from one agency or another."

"We have been super blessed," Longo added.

Regarding a complaint by John Schwartz the aldermen informally advised the Waveland resident, as soon as weather permits, the city will try to resolve several drainage problems throughout the city.

Schwartz, who lives at the corner of Garden Lane and Jeff Davis Avenue, told aldermen if something is not done about a drainage problem in front of his home he is going to block the street. The resident said standing water on the street is splashed into his yard by passing automobiles.

Longo told Schwartz he would 'go to jail' if he blocked the street.

The mayor said as soon as the weather improves, an engineer will study the problem.

Although Schwartz offered several suggestions, aldermen agreed the drainage problem would have to be engineered before any work could be authorized.

Public hearing attendance poor

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Bay St. Louis Council held a public hearing on the proposal of a water extension on the north side of US-90 from Main to Washington Streets Monday.

Gerry Lane and Harmon Turan of Turan-Lane Chevrolet and their attorney Michael Haas were in attendance.

A representative of Chevron Oil Company appeared but did not take any position.

Three letters were received by the Council objecting to the assessment. The letters were from Mrs. Henry Polton, Mr. and Mrs. John Benigno and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Benigno.

A group of US-90 Merchants with Ronnie Artigues as spokesman objected to the front foot assessment at the Council's last regular meeting.

Council felt the majority were against the front foot assessment and are seeking other ways of providing the services to the area.

Brown Engineers, Inc. are currently working with Farmers Home Loan Administration seeking grants and loans for the installation of water, fire and sewer service for all areas of the City without them.

Lane said he was president of a group in 1967 looking into the annexation of the area.

"We were promised all city services

In other business at the 9 a.m. meeting in the County Courthouse, the board:

—Approved a change order to Ansley-Lakeshore Road state aid project authorizing Shaw Supply Co. to stripe some six miles of the road for $1,665 as requested by County Engineer Lawrence Seal;

—Approved a reduction of assessment for Gulf National Bank in Bay St. Louis from $32,620 to $23,320;

—Approved the County Port and Harbor Commission's port and harbor construction, industrial park revenue and terminal dockets for payment;

—Approved the transfer of $79,697 from the Port and Harbor Commission's industrial park revenue fund to the port and harbor construction fund to reimburse land acquisition cost for a 106-acre land sale from International Paper Co. Commission Director W. Wilson Webre said Borg-Warner Chemicals has an option on the land; —Approved a special use permit for the Mississippi National Guard to use Stennis International Airport for night parachute jumping exercises;

—Approved the transfer of $11,400 from the Port and Harbor industrial park revenue fund to the bond fund for a principal payment to the Economic Development Administration on Lot Nine at Port Bienville. Webre said the lot included some seven acres which will be sold to Engineered Steel Co.;

—Approved the issuance of $4 million of industrial revenue bonds for the proposed expansion of Alcan Cable Co. in Bay St. Louis;

—Approved advertising for bids to restore Beach Boulevard from the Waveland city limits to Bayou Cadet as specified by Seal. The project will utilize $8,500 of federal disaster assistance funds appropriated as a result of Hurricane Fredrich storm damage; security guards are patrolling the campus until the new fence is installed. Sills reported repair costs will run nearly $51,770 at the school, adding he has discussed insurance settlements with Coastal Insurance but has not received a firm commitment on its behalf.

In other business Saturday, the board has set up a due process hearing with Head Basketball Coach Roland Ladner and Head Football Coach Irvin Favre, who were not recommended for employment for the upcoming school year by outgoing Principal Thad Haskins.

Both hearings will take place Saturday, May 31 in the board room following a recess meeting of the board.

Ladner's hearing is scheduled for 10 a.m. and Favre will be heard at 11 a.m. Senior class members of the football team also presented the board with a petition in support of Favre, signed by all team members.

In the letter the team commended Favre for "doing a fine job on and off the field."

"We are proud of him and his leadership and courage. If he is released, we will be losing a great coach and a fine man who is an asset to our community," the letter reads.

Board President Woodrow Ladner asked that the letter be show in the school board minutes.

Also at Saturday's meeting, Head Girls Basketball and Track Coach Charlie Jacobs requested his coaching supplement be increased to equal those of the other head coaches, and also asked the board make a job description for each coach so spring sports coaches will receive a supplement.

Jacobs said he had discussed receiving a $500 raise to bring him on an equal pay scale with the other head coaches, and also asked the board to consider a $400 spring sports coaching supplement.

"I just want to see where I stand next year before school starts," Jacobs told the board.

Sills told Jacobs he will recommend the $500 raise to the board.

In other business, School Patron John Ladner asked the board why his son, a scholarship recipient who graduated this year, was not allowed to participate in the commencement exercises and was not named as a graduate or scholarship recipient.

Citing the action as "systematic discrimination possibly because of my involvement in matters of bettering education," Ladner explained that when his son picked up his cap and gown for the ceremonies, he wore them over a t-shirt instead of a shirt and tie.

A counselor told his son that he could not participate in the commencement by order of Sills, Ladner continued.

"My son's name was not called out at commencement, nor was the fact that he is a scholarship recipient," Ladner told the board.

"I want an explanation of this, and I want to know who is responsible," the parent added.

Woodrow Ladner said the board "will look into the matter."

"I don't want it looked into, I want action," John Ladner said.

The board recessed until 9 a.m. Saturday morning.

Waterspouts sighted near Bay, Waveland

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
For the second time this week tornado warnings were issued for Hancock County and Southern Mississippi. The second warning came late Thursday evening after several waterspouts were spotted offshore from Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

Monday, tornadoes ripped an estimated $5 million trail of destruction across the southern end of the county leaving many Garden Isles residents homeless and seriously damaged Gulfview Elementary School and Bay Marina.

No storm damage was reported in Hancock County after Thursday's tornado warning.

Jimmy Varnell, a Waveland Fire Department fireman, spotted a waterspout about 5:05 p.m. Thursday near the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club.

"It was a stocky white funnel cloud. That son of a gun was big and white because it had so much water in it," Varnell explained.

The waterspout moved on a usual southwest to northeast course across the Bay toward duPont de Nemour, Inc., Deltale plant.

DuPont reported the waterspout went directly over the facility, but no damage was reported at the plant.

Several funnel clouds darkened in and out of dark grey clouds over Bay St. Louis for about a half-hour after the Bay waterspout sighting.

However, two waterspouts were sighted offshore from Waveland based on several unofficial reports late Thursday.

SEOUL—South Korea's economic test since the end of the last year has been a series of setbacks.

After nearly a decade of rapid development, the country's economic growth has slowed to a crawl. The government's ambitious plan to double the country's gross national product by 1982 is now in jeopardy.

Labor and big business are at odds. The government is trying to control inflation, but the cost of living is rising. The country's political situation is also unstable.

that additional plants had been taken in late April to the Gulfview Nursing Home, and that the flower boxes in front of the building were being planted by the Diamondhead Garden Club.

Club members voted to begin next year's meetings at 10 a.m. rather than 10:30. They also voted to purchase a newly-published volume entitled 'Bartram Heritage' for the club library.

Mrs. Finley read the annual report she is required to make to the Garden Clubs of Mississippi, Inc. State and national objectives complied with were active participation in the following: Arbor Day programs, Beautification and Litter, Birds, Conservation and Ecology, with an extensive 'Plant Yellow' bulb program, Garden Therapy, HANDS, monthly horticulture programs, Landscape and Design Planning at Diamondhead, establishment of a Memorial Garden, a Pilgrimage, Wildflowers conservation, and World Gardening contribution.

Other areas of work done by the club included choosing of a Garden of the Month, participation in the Diamondhead Mardi Gras parade, and publicity in three area newspapers.

On June 18, a class in disaster instruction will be given by Mr. John Tucker of the American Red Cross.

Business was tabled temporarily as the members enjoyed a covered dish luncheon which is now a traditional part of the final meeting of the year.

After lunch, Mrs. Clarence A. Evans installed the following officers: Mrs. Finley, president; Mrs. Frances Mayfield, first vice president; Mrs. Steele, recording secretary; Mrs. Milton Haggard, treasurer; Mrs. Hickman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Devine, parliamentarian; and Mrs. J.H. Fierich, historian.

The Club's annual Woman-Of-The-Year Award was presented to Mrs. Evans by Mrs. Finley along with a framed dogwood blossom picture.

Mrs. Finley also gave these to the officers who had served with her the past year.

The final event of the day was a presentation of a State Life Membership in Garden Clubs of Mississippi Inc. to Mrs. Finley in recognition of her outstanding service as club president.

Mexican, German traditions highlight Ladner ceremony

Miss Clarissa Gonzalez and John Steven Ladner were united in marriage in a double ring, candlelight ceremony Jan. 19 at 8 p.m. at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Edinburg, Texas.

The Reverend Norbert Deddens of Edinburg officiating as the main celebrant, while Fr. Brum of Rio Hondo Texas officiated over the exchange of the marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo C. Gonzalez of Edinburg. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Ladner of Bay St. Louis.

Adorning the main and side altars of the church were arrangements of white gladioli and chrysanthemums.

Two heart-shaped brass candelabras holding 17 white tapers each were draped with garland of mixed ferns, white pom poms and baby's breath.

The processional aisle was lined with single candelabras draped in mixed ferns and baby's breath. The pews in between were adorned with white satin cluster bows. A white lace aisle runner extended to the altar.

Dan Lagne, organist and Rene Ramirez vocalist, provided music for the mass ceremony.

The bride's gown was fashioned in ivory angel satin. Reembroidered alencon lace embellished the empire bodice that formed a scooped neckline and hosted an applique long sleeve with tiny covered buttons on the straight cuffed sleeves. The back of the gown was also fashioned with the same applique alencon lace and was highlighted by a row of tiny covered buttons.

A wide border of imported alencon lace enhanced the scalloped pattern of the hemline which ended in a flowing chapel length with the same scalloped lace surrounding the border. Her veil was a long mantilla lavishly embroidered with imported alencon lace. Pearl beads were also embroidered into the design of the lace and along the entire border of the cathedral length veil.

Miss Deborah Jean Van Matre attended the bride as the maid-of-honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Peggy Sue Jenkins of Bay Side, Texas, Miss Matha Robertson of Lubbock, Texas, Miss Myrna Garza of Edinburg, cousin of the bride, and Miss Pamela Ann Canales of Alice, also cousin of the bride, served as junior bridesmaid.

Each attendant carried something different. The first bridesmaid carried a bouquet of small burgundy mums with a lit candle in the center, representing the celebration of the wedding which is a traditional ceremony among sorority sisters. The remaining bridesmaids and maid of honor each carried bread baskets shaped in different forms.

Each basket contained a bag of salt, a bag of coins (U.S., Mexican and German), a small loaf of bread, and a spread of wheat. Since they will be living in Germany they chose this German custom which represents that the couple shall always have the salt of the earth, food and money to keep them from ever needing anything.

The Junior bridesmaid carried a prayer book with a small spray of flowers on top to represent their christian faith that brought them together.

The madras and padrinos were: Padrinos de Aras, Mr. and Mrs. Adan Canales of Alice, Texas (The Aras were goldplated in 14K gold); Padrinos de Lazo, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Garza of Edinburg (The Pearl Lazo was specially ordered from Guadalajara Jalisco, Mexico); Padrinos de Cofines, Mr. and Mrs. Jose Noe Gonzalez of Edinburg (The Candelight satin cushions were designed with two doves and the words "Our Wedding" embroidered with tiny pearls in book-like fashion); Padrinos de Bouquet, Mr. and Mrs. Cirio Trevino of Edinburg (The bouquet was an old-world creation of tiny bridal roses, cushion mums, stephenotis and fern tied in lover's knots); Madrina de Libro and rosario was Mrs. Carola Gutierrez of Edinburg (The prayer book with mother-of-pearl cover and a silver rosary).

The madras wore identical gowns to that of the bridesmaids with added long sleeves and contrasting belts.

The flower girl was Miss Megan Marsh of McAllen and Master Jaime Salazar served as ring bearer.

The girl wore a dress also of old rose rust with ivory lace on the bodice and surrounding the flared skirt. She wore baby's breath and burgundy mums with her hair and carried a small basket of rose petals and baby's breath.

The ring bearer carried the wedding rings on a heart-shaped ivory satin pillow and wore an ascot, gray tuxedo identical to that of the groom, and best man.

David Daniel Gonzalez, brother of the bride from Edinburg, attended the bridegroom as best man. Groomsman included Rogelio Montemayor of Laredo, Robert Garza of Edinburg and Danny Saenz of Edinburg.

For her daughter's wedding the bride's mother selected a designer gown of pale peach chiffon with V-neckline and lavishly beaded bodice. She wore a double cattleya white orchid wrist corsage.

The bridegroom's mother selected a floor length burgundy quiana gown with an accenting floral jacket. She also wore a double cattleya white orchid wrist corsage. Following the ceremony a reception and dance was held at the Edinburg Activity Center.

For their honeymoon the couple took a short trip to South Padre Island and will continue their honeymoon upon arriving in Germany for two weeks.

The bride graduated from Edinburg High School and is a graduate of Texas A&I University, with a degree in Psychology and sociology.

She was a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority, president of Gold Jackets, a women's scholastic honorary organization, Greek Council, Lynch Horse Council, Dean of student Life-Council and Horticulture Club. She was also in the Dean's Honor List.

The bride-groom graduated from Long Beach High School in Mississippi and also graduated from the University of Southern Mississippi with a degree in computer science and a minor in math.

He was awarded the George C. Marshall award for military work and was a member of Phi Theta Kappa, a scholastic honorary fraternity. He is presently a second lieutenant in the United States Army.

Loss of trees imperiling man's drinking water supply

By S. GRADY THIGPEN

Trees tend to modify local climate, particularly in heavily forested areas, by reducing extremes of temperature, increasing humidity, reducing surface wind velocities, decreasing evaporation and, most of all, in holding and conserving soil moisture.

We balance the wheels on our automobiles to make them work perfectly. If they get out of balance, there is trouble, extra wear of the car, maybe serious wrecks result. There is a balance in nature that, when disturbed, wrecks havoc, too.

Nature responds to all changes in her own way. If we create new conditions like, for instance, cutting off the timber without replacing it, then nature responds with a new balance as a result of the changes we make.

There is ample evidence of these facts in all the older areas of the world. In North Africa we have ample evidence that there once existed in that area one of the most prosperous sections of the whole world. Today that section is a desert because of the changed balance of nature in that area.

One could write a thousand pages of history of areas that were once prosperous, strong and well fed that nature passed by in some stage in the handing out of proper amounts of water, temperatures and sunshine.

One man who has made a great study of temperatures says that a change all over the world of four degrees in temperature would upset the economy of all mankind, again showing what an important thing is our weather. Just as the wheel on your car will cause trouble when it is out of balance, so does the weather cause all kinds of trouble when unbalanced. When unbalanced by too much burning of our woodlands, too much cutting of timber without replacement, too much erosion and too much waste of precious water.

A Yale University professor said in a speech in St. Louis to the American Association of the Advancement of Science as follows:

"Unless the present trend of climate change is cushioned by improved land use and increased applications of conservation—of natural resources, the consequences may be serious."

This same man warned that a warmer and drier climate will mean scarcity of water, right at a time when increased use of water is necessary for the expansion of communities and industry. There are many places in the world where civilization perished because of the wanton destruction of natural resources.

Destruction of a civilization does not happen all at one time. It is a slow process such as we see going on in certain dry sections of the United States today.

It is most important, it is imperative, that we keep our idle lands growing in trees, not only for the production of timber, but for the preservation of a balance that makes this country good to live in.

Studies by experts show that an area well covered in trees is from three to four degrees cooler in summer than the same area after the trees are cut off. And more important, there is much more water in area of trees.

It is a general experience that the water level goes down when an area is cleared of trees. Well drillers will tell you that they have to drill deeper for water after an area is denuded of all trees.

The drier the climate, the deeper we have to go for water and the more water that has to be used.

The big trouble is that our rain does not fall evenly. Every once in a while we have a rainy season which may last for a month or so, but most of this rainfall is lost because the water runs off where the trees and brush have been cleared off and where woods fires have burned the grass and other trash on the land.

The root systems of trees hold and store much water. It is said that the root systems of trees will store enough water in an area not burned over to carry the trees through any ordinary drought.

In California in 1948, hundreds of thousands of acres of land dried up because of lack of moisture and produced nothing. The lands had been bulldozed and cleared without regard to water conservation.

Human being in that area, not satisfied with chopping down the forests and doing away with nature's method of holding water, now have to go 40 feet deeper into the earth to find drinking water, and they must dig deeper and deeper as the years pass.

Nature's balance has been badly upset in that area, and people are having to pay a high price for this unsound practice.

Ground water, the water from which we get our drinking water is also taken for granted, and we are losing this precious water just as we have lost other valuable assets.

Today, right here, we have to go much deeper to get water for our homes than we had to go a short time ago. It has taken thousands of years to accumulate the supply of ground water which we take for granted and do not appreciate.

There is a natural balance between the recharge and the use of this water. If it is used faster than it is put back in, then the water level falls and balance has been disturbed. When we upset nature's balance, we have to pay for it by suffering loss, or less water, or of going to much more expense to get it.

The biggest enemy to our supply of ground water is the man who burns over the woods and destroys your trees. Burned over areas have no way of storing this precious ground water and the supply gets to be less and less.

In one area in this country the water table stood at 30 feet in 1915. In 1942 the water table, from which we get our precious drinking water, stood at 107 feet, a drop of 77 feet in 27 years.

You may say, "What has that got to do with me?" Well, it has a lot to do with you, because the water table is falling right here. It's happening right here!

We are slowly losing our most precious asset, our water. It's not happening all at once, and I don't think there is any danger of any water shortage soon, but our supply is going down all the time.

What a dreary prospect this offers to our children and grandchildren! What will they think of us who are letting the future be dimmed by our carelessness? The man who is causing us to lose this precious heritage of water is the woods burner and those who clear our lands without regard to conservation.

What a great thing it would be if all now idle land was growing in pine trees. If you want more money, if you want a better place to live, be sure that there are plenty of trees on the land you own, even if the acreage is small, even if only a lot in town.

Main Street Methodist notes Sunday School anniversary

The 20th Anniversary of the Founding of the Sunday School will be observed at the Main Street United Methodist Church today beginning at 11:00 a.m. During the worship hour there will be a scene portraying the origins of the Sunday School.

Prayers of thanksgiving will be offered for the founders of the movement, notably Robert Raikes, a newspaper publisher from Gloucester, England. Persons will be able to view a display of local Sunday School records and photos.

The celebration will conclude with a covered-dish meal. The whole community is invited to participate in this 200th observance.

The Sunday School movement dates back to 1780 and a newspaper publisher in England, Robert Raikes.

Looking at the plight of thousands of children who were working 16 hours a day and spending their spare time on the streets, Raikes felt they should have a chance to write and become acquainted with the Scriptures.

To accomplish this dream, he began to hold school for the youngsters on Sunday mornings, the only time they were not required to work. The idea spread quickly through the English-speaking world, in part through Raikes' influence as the editor of 'The Gloucester Journal.'

'Sunday School' showed phenomenal growth and soon became a popular international movement. In our own nation the idea took root early and over the years Sunday School have become an important educational component of nearly every Protestant Church.

Main Street United Methodist Church is joining other Protestant Churches across the United States, Canada, England, and other nations during 1980 to remember and celebrate the 200th anniversary of the founding of Sunday School.

Many churches plan to use the occasion to look at the past, to examine their present, and in light of both to begin planning for more effective programs in their churches to make education and mission available to all.

South African Feted in Pineville church

By JOE PILET

Winston Kennedy, a native of South Africa, and a student of theology in Jackson, visited Presbyterian services at Diamondhead and again in Pineville on Sunday where he was honored with a reception and dinner following his morning lecture.

Kennedy's message, based on the early parable "Who is your neighbor?" was enthusiastically received in that he successfully gave a "new slant to an old theme."

"A parable," explained Kennedy, "is a simple story with a moral lesson."

He read the parable from an international Bible which differs in verbiage somewhat from the St. James Version with which most Americans are familiar.

Kennedy said that he frequently visits South Africa where racial tension is now well under control. He said white ministers visited in the churches of the blacks and were well received.

Kennedy has been in the United States for about nine years, leaving his home in South Africa upon graduation from high school. He graduated from college at Fort Wayne, Indiana and expects to work as a relief minister in the Diamondhead-Pineville communities this summer.

Pearl ranked among top precious stones

GEM OF THE OCEAN A PRICELESS PEARL BY JOE PILET

Most jewelers accept the Pearl as the birthstone for June, although others include the alexandrite and the moonstone. Wearers of pearls, tradition tells us, are assured health. A perfectly formed and perfectly shaped pearl ranks in value with the most precious stones.

Its character is unique. In contrast to mineral gems which are mined beneath the earth, the pearl is formed under water and reflect the shell of an oyster. Gem minerals are hard and reflect light while the pearl is relatively soft and absorbs as well as reflects light!

Because pearls are soft they should be cared for carefully. Pearl necklaces should be washed and dried gently after they are worn if subjected to perspiration. Pearl rings are easily scratched and should be stored separately from other jewels.

The value of a pearl is determined by weight, color, shape and degree of purity. Black pearls (they are really a dark shiny gray) are most valuable.

Pearls may be pink, orange, gold, cream, white, and iridescent. There are three kinds of pearls: natural pearls, cultured pearls and "fake" or imitation pearls.

Pearl oyster beds in the Persian Gulf area are fished every seventh year, the length of time it requires a young oyster to grow a moderate sized pearl.

Cultured pearls are real pearls, distinguished from the natural ones in that under controlled conditions tiny pellets or irritants are interested in the oyster by a process developed by Mikimoto.

Within three years the cultured pearl is ready for commercial use. On a visit to Japan's famous "Mikimoto Pearl Island," I was impressed with the scientific procedures and was told the "irritants" used came from crushed clam shells from our Mississippi's Pearl River!

Imitation pearls are just glass beads coated with pearl essence, a creamy, extract made from fish scales. Sometimes one can see a bit of the glass bead showing through where the pearl is strung.

Most mollusks grow pearls, but the edible clams and oysters have dull shells and their pearls are without luster.

So, should you find a pearl in your fried oysters, don't lament—it wasn't worth much anyway.

Should you, however, become the owner of a matched string of pearls, care for them gently and wear them proudly remembering that it took years for the gems to develop and more years of careful collecting to come with a perfectly matched strand.

There's an Answer!

Afraid of death
Q. I am an 18-year-old girl who is having serious doubts about life after death. All of a sudden I am terrified with the idea of old age and death. I no longer see any purpose in life. This is on my mind constantly and is literally ruining many things in my life. Tell me, will I spend eternity with my loved ones, especially the man I am going to marry in two years?

A. Your experience is not uncommon at your age. One of the greatest poems on death, "Thanatopsis," was written by a young man. Maturity will bring you mental peace through deeper faith and philosophical understanding. Just accept life as it is and enter into it with dedication and enjoyment. The kindly God who gives you this present life will watch over you always and give you an even more wonderful life when this one is over.

Never felt this way
Q. I am 14 and have a crush on my teacher (about 26). It's a feeling that I've never felt before. I was thinking that maybe I look to him as a father figure. Is this right? Should I tell him or not? If so, how do I go about it?

A. Perhaps you have wisely analyzed your feelings. Of course you should not tell your teacher. All you need do is keep your head, retain your good common sense, and in time you'll discover these feelings for him have faded.

Bay Library hosting glassware exhibit

By JOE PILET

There is a rare collection of early glassware on exhibit at the City-County Public Library in Bay St. Louis. It was placed there through the courtesy of Dorothy A. Brown and may be seen during library hours until mid-June.

The exhibit includes an exquisite cranberry glass pitcher dating from around 1865. Its beauty is enhanced by a fine pair of portrait plates. The jewel-like sparkle of the pitcher denotes its high gold content.

An elegant Victorian fish serving set (circa 1890) is on the lower left shelf of the case and consists of an elongated platter, serving plates and sauce bowl.

The set is unmistakably Bohemian with motif of several species of fishes. Dominant colors are greens accented with dainty gold embellishments.

A museum quality carnival glass bowl on display may definitely be classified as high quality "pressed glass." Its design is pleasing, and there is luminosity in its amber coloring.

"Carnival glass," explained Mrs. Brown, "comes in various shades and at least three qualities."

Cheap carnival glass was given as prizes at fairs, carnivals and other competition game events, it was explained. The glass was manufactured both in England and the United States, Mrs. Brown said.

Complimenting the bowl are a pair of handsome Imperial molded candlesticks in rich blue, accented in yellow gold, very like Tiffany Favre and manufactured about 1915. Delightfully different and dainty is the delicate English porcelain tea set consisting of a small pitcher, cups, saucers, creamer, waste bowl and dessert plate.

"It is most unusual," Mrs. Brown said pointing out the delicately shaded and hand painted leaf design.

The set is accented with gold embellishments on the rims. Mrs. Brown dates the set at around 1880-1890.

Figurines of fine French and English bisque depict an English lady with her dog, a country girl wearing farm work shoes, and a barefoot beauty who is costumed in a splendid Italian outfit.

"No doubt," Mrs. Brown mused, "these pieces were once the pride of what-not stands."

The figurine collection was acquired in New Orleans and is thought by Mrs. Brown to be both rare and early.

Not to be overlooked is a Royal Bond German vase-Victorian and about 1910-and several small and wondrously wrought items.

Mrs. Brown, a relatively newcomer to the Bay-Waveland area, grew up in the shadow of Princeton University where her father was for many years a professor.

At Princeton's art museum Mrs. Brown very early in life developed an appreciation for quality workmanship.

"I love the beautiful things that were made by able craftsmen. I have always admired beautiful colors, quality workmanship, and harmony," Mrs. Brown said. No stranger to the Deep South, Mrs. Brown was owner of antique shops in Long Beach, Mississippi City and New Orleans. She said she chose to locate in Bay St. Louis because "the town is unspoiled, the people are charming, and the place is well located being near to both New Orleans and Mobile."

Sands of Time, the antique shop owned by Mrs. Brown and located on Second Street will soon be housed in the old Woodmen of the World building, now being restored by Mr. and Mrs. Brown.

Walls are going up - the insulation going in, and partitions placed to accommodate some ten separate shops as well as a country store, museum, and large front parlor to accommodate the several needs of local groups - "But," concluded Mrs. Brown, "that is another story."
